

The American Revolution was fought because Britain had started 3 pointless wars against the British who all of them. And they had went in debt so mercantilism had started and mercantilism is when you have more exports than imports and so the British started taking everything and that is when the colonists got mad because the British was taking everything and doing the colonists wrong so the colonists started attacking back like dumping tea over board the ships and stuff like that.

5 reasons
100/AT Great!